From ITE to NUS medicine: Ex-dropout makes the grade

23-year-old, who had quit secondary school, is first ITE grad to be accepted by med school

Amelia Teng
Education Correspondent

The long shot has come good.

Mr Nicholas Chan, 23, is the first Institute of Technical Education (ITE) graduate to make it to the National University of Singapore's Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, which this year had about 280 places for some 2,000 applicants.

Far from being a straight-A student, he had quit secondary school, taken the O levels as a private candidate, then trained as a nursing student in ITE, and then Nanyang Polytechnic (NYP).

"I freaked out and I lost it," said Mr Chan, when he logged on to the admissions portal for universities earlier this month to check if his application was successful. He even took a video of himself clicking "yes" to the offer that night, just because he could not believe that he had been accepted.

His application to the medical school last year was rejected.

"I was just being realistic. I'm far from the best person to apply. I knew it was a long shot, and to get it was really unreal."

Andy Pang Teng Seng

Grades were never a priority for Andy during his primary school days. Although he was channelled to the 'N(T)' stream, he slowly began to enjoy learning. This new-found joy propelled him to graduate as the top student for GCE 'N(T)' Level in his secondary school. He subsequently completed Nitec in Mechatronics with an impressive Grade Point Average (GPA) of 3.98. That set his path towards a Diploma in Mechatronics at TP.

▶▶ As applied learning was his forte, Andy grew in confidence as he shared his knowledge by tutoring his peers and juniors who faced difficulties in school. Andy's performance improved steadily and his final year project won the merit award at the TP Engineering Roadshow.

Upon completion of his National Service (NS), Andy proceeded to pursue the same field through a degree in Nanyang Technological University (NTU) and eventually attained a Degree with Honours in Electrical and Electronic Engineering.

Andy's Education and Career Pathway

As applied learning was his forte, Andy grew in confidence as he shared his knowledge by tutoring his peers and juniors who faced difficulties in school.
